

The Webroster Group reports record levels of new customers.

Peterborough based software supplier, the Webroster Group, has taken on an all time high number of new customers for its web based rostering application, Webroster.net, during December and January.

Webroster.net is an online application used within the health and social care industries to automatically roster, manage and track staff. It negates the need for manual rosters, timesheets, mileage forms and worksheets by storing all the necessary information in one easy to use online application.

More new customers have started to use the application during December and January than any other month previously. Not only has this helped to raise the Webroster.net brand in the UK but it has also pushed the brand over the borders as two of the new customers are based in Scotland and one in Wales.

The increase has also seen two new Crossroads Care schemes take out Webroster.net, which makes Crossroads Care the Webroster Group's largest customer.

Managing Director, Nigel Gittins said: "It's encouraging to see that Webroster.net is becoming an increasingly popular brand among health and social care providers, the recent influx of new customers will allow us to continue to develop the system and push technological boundaries."
